

ATHENA

A celebration of harmony between form and function, the Athena washbasin captivates with its sculptural silhouette and tactile presence. Its base is composed of slender wooden blades, arranged in a turbine-inspired configuration that encircles the stone basin with effortless precision. This seamless integration evokes a sense of movement while inviting touch, highlighting the artisanal care behind each curve and detail.

With its interplay of warm wood and refined stone, Athena is more than a functional piece—it's a quiet statement of sophistication, crafted for spaces that value authenticity, texture, and timeless elegance.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

Athena is not designed to be glanced at—it's meant to be experienced. Its form invites movement: to be walked around, explored from every angle, and discovered in layers. The tactile qualities of its surface encourage touch, while the interplay of light and shadow transforms it throughout the day—revealing new subtleties as natural light shifts and glides across its curves. It's an object that lives with time, not against it.

The design speaks in a quiet but deliberate language. It avoids unnecessary embellishment, yet exudes richness through proportion, material, and craft. Grounded in clarity, Athena never feels sterile—its warmth lies in its restraint.

BARCELONA

A tribute to the eclectic beauty of its namesake city, the Barcelona washbasin embodies artistic courage and architectural rhythm. Its sculptural silhouette merges the strength of fluted wood with the timeless elegance of marble, while an integrated LED strip—hidden beneath the wooden midsection—introduces a poetic layer of illumination.

This soft glow casts subtle shadows that evolve throughout the day, echoing the ever-changing character of Barcelona itself. More than a functional piece, Barcelona is an experience—where light, texture, and form converge to create a dramatic yet refined presence in any contemporary interior.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

The Barcelona washbasin was conceived as a layered composition—where light, form, and material converge to create a living object. Its central idea lies in contrast, not just between textures, but between presence and transformation.

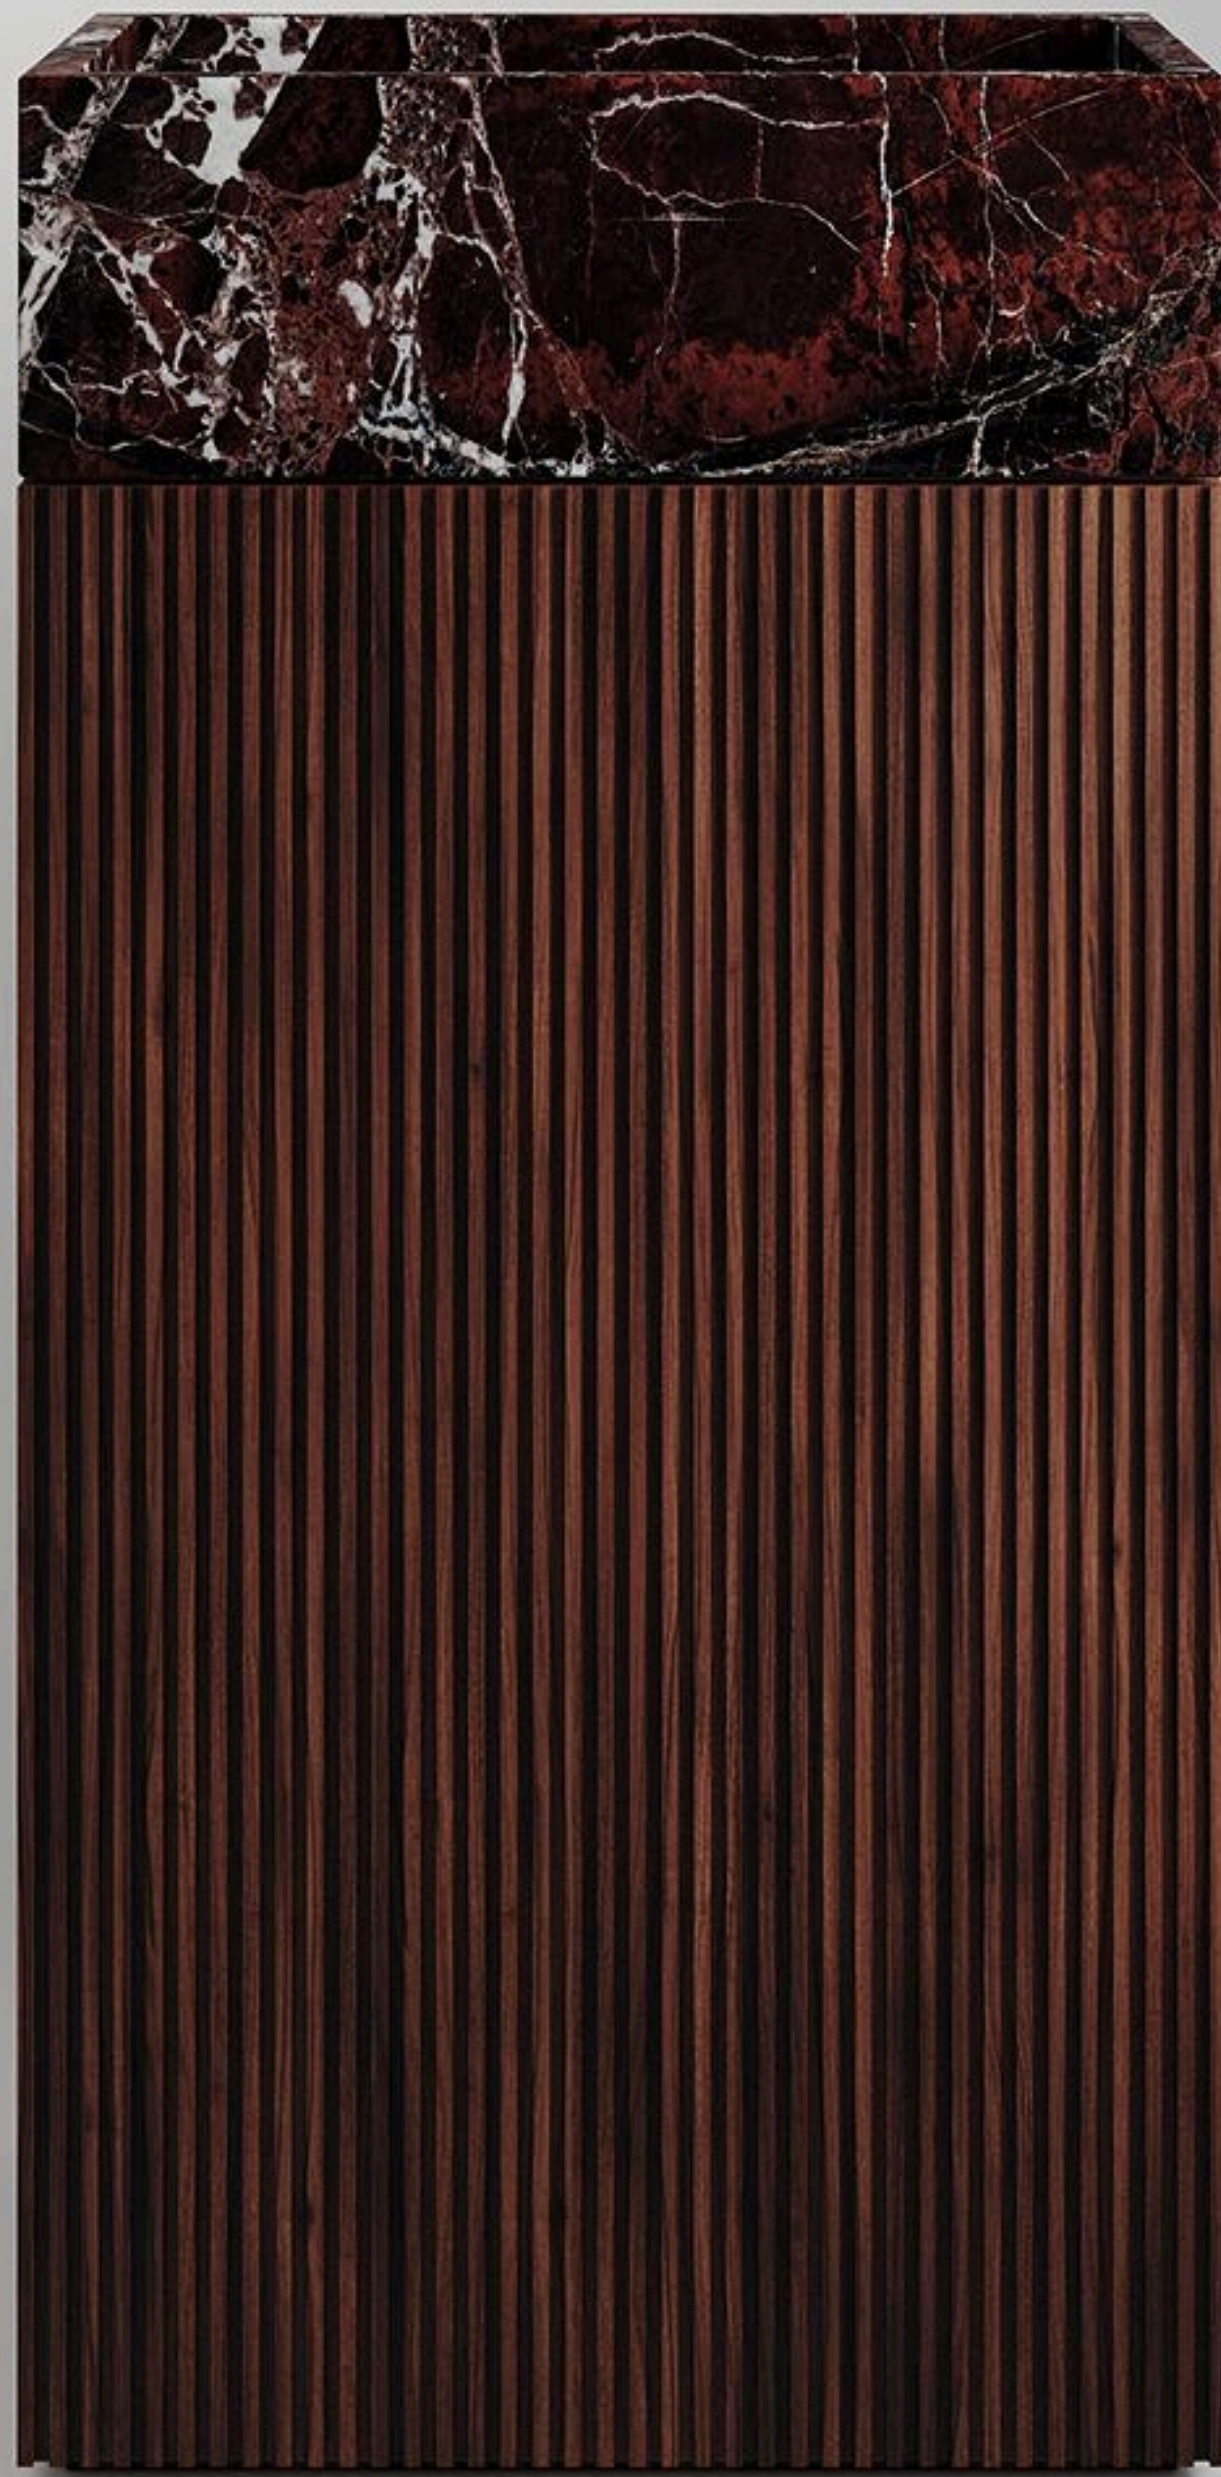

The integrated LED strip is not decorative; it activates the piece, casting shifting shadows that evolve throughout the day. The fluted wood and solid stone create a tactile tension, while the floating middle section invites curiosity and movement. Barcelona isn't static—it reacts. It was designed to feel alive in space, embracing change, atmosphere, and the belief that great design is not just seen, but felt.

CHICAGO

Defined by its strong lines and architectural clarity, the Chicago washbasin brings sculptural sophistication into the bathroom space. Its rectangular basin is precision-carved from solid stone, resting atop a base wrapped in finely fluted wood that adds texture, depth, and rhythm. The vertical detailing recalls the order and elegance of modernist design, while the balanced proportions and clean geometry offer a grounded, timeless presence.

Designed for contemporary interiors that value structure and simplicity, the Chicago washbasin blends function and artistry—creating a refined focal point where materials and form speak a shared language of confidence and craftsmanship.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

The Chicago washbasin is an exercise in vertical expression—where structure becomes identity. Inspired by the clarity and repetition found in modern architecture, its design is defined by clean lines, strong geometry, and deliberate rhythm. The vertical fluting on the wooden base creates a visual tempo, grounding the design with quiet authority.

Above, the stone basin introduces contrast in texture and weight, reinforcing the sense of balance. Every element serves a purpose—there is no ornament, only intention. Chicago is built on the belief that elegance emerges not from embellishment, but from proportion, discipline, and the confidence of well-composed form.

PARIS

A tribute to timeless elegance, the Paris washbasin draws inspiration from the architectural heritage of the French capital. Its cylindrical base, crafted from meticulously selected oak, American walnut, or ebony, is defined by vertical wooden slats that add depth, texture, and rhythm to the silhouette.

The washbowl, sculpted from marble, offers a rich contrast through its smooth, reflective surface—creating a harmonious interplay of materiality and form. Designed for those who appreciate refined details and lasting beauty, the Paris washbasin transforms any bathroom into a sophisticated sanctuary, where design meets craftsmanship in its purest expression.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

The design philosophy behind this washbasin lies in the pursuit of balance—between form and function, texture and clarity, structure and softness. Its fluted base introduces a sense of rhythm and depth, while the overall silhouette remains calm and grounded. The goal was to create a piece that feels sculptural without being imposing, refined without being fragile.

Every line, proportion, and surface was shaped to invite both visual and tactile appreciation. It's a study in restraint and precision, where craftsmanship is not loud but quietly confident, allowing the natural materials to speak with clarity and purpose.

ROMA

The Roma washbasin is a sculptural reinterpretation of classical elegance through a contemporary lens. Its striking silhouette breaks away from rigid symmetry, embracing curvature and architectural presence with grace. Crafted from a refined fusion of solid marble and full-grain leather, Roma invites both visual intrigue and tactile exploration.

The soft texture of the leather base contrasts beautifully with the weight and permanence of the stone top, offering a multi-sensory experience rooted in design duality. Bold yet timeless, Roma speaks to those who seek character, craftsmanship, and a refined deviation from the expected.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

The Roma washbasin was designed as an exploration of duality—softness and solidity, tradition and disruption, symmetry and deviation. Its form deliberately steps away from rigid geometry, embracing curvature and tension to create an object that feels both grounded and alive.

The stone top offers a sense of permanence, a material with history and weight, while the leather-clad base introduces warmth, imperfection, and a human touch. This contrast is not incidental; it's central to the philosophy. Roma is not about harmony in the conventional sense—it's about meaningful friction. It invites reflection on how opposing forces can coexist, enhance, and ultimately define one another.

LONDON

Rooted in the energy of the Industrial Revolution, the London washbasin embodies strength, movement, and ingenuity. Its cylindrical base—formed from sculpted wooden blades in a continuous loop—recalls the form of a turbine, a subtle nod to London’s legacy of innovation and progress. This dynamic design merges craftsmanship with concept, delivering a piece that feels both grounded and forward-looking.

Crowned with a minimalist stone basin, the London washbasin brings sculptural presence and refined texture to the bathroom space, making it an emblem of bold functionality and timeless industrial luxury.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

The London washbasin explores the idea of engineered emotion—how structure can evoke feeling without relying on softness. Its design transforms static material into a gesture of rotation, capturing the instant before movement begins. Each blade in the base is positioned not just for function, but for tension—like the gearing of a machine or the intake of breath before motion.

It's a study in controlled energy, where repetition becomes expression. Rather than conceal its construction, the piece wears it proudly, turning mechanics into poetry. The result is bold, deliberate, and unapologetically sculptural.

NEW YORK

The New York washbasin challenges symmetry and embraces bold geometry, resulting in a piece that feels both architectural and expressive. Its angular silhouette carves through space with sculptural confidence, while the fusion of rich stone and soft leather introduces a tactile tension that is both striking and refined.

Each surface is carefully finished to highlight contrast—sharp versus smooth, solid versus supple—creating an interplay of materials that speaks to contemporary elegance. More than functional, the New York washbasin is a work of art: designed to command attention, celebrate craftsmanship, and elevate the experience of the everyday ritual.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

The New York washbasin was designed to challenge expectations—of shape, material, and what elegance can look like. Its angular form breaks from symmetry, favoring sharp lines and assertive geometry over softness. This isn't a piece that blends in; it was created to stand apart.

The combination of solid stone and supple leather is intentional—a study in contrast that invites both visual and tactile tension. It reflects a philosophy rooted in bold expression: that true luxury lies not in playing it safe, but in embracing strong ideas with precision. New York is for spaces—and people—that are unafraid to make a statement.

BERLIN

Inspired by the tension between history and modernity that defines Berlin, this washbasin captures the essence of a city constantly reinventing itself. The bold silhouette, marked by a generously deep basin and compact circular base, echoes the strength and clarity of brutalist lines softened by contemporary refinement.

Vertical rectangular fluting adds a graphic rhythm, while the contrasting finishes suggest both structure and soul. Berlin is not just a washbasin—it's an architectural statement for spaces that speak a clear, confident design language rooted in meaning and material integrity.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

The Berlin washbasin in wood and marble explores the balance between discipline and warmth. Its cylindrical base, clad in vertically fluted wood, introduces a sense of texture and rhythm—bringing life to a form rooted in order. The marble basin above acts as a counterpoint: cool, refined, and enduring. Together, the two materials form a dialogue between natural tactility and architectural structure.

This piece was designed to embody quiet strength—to feel grounded without heaviness, expressive without excess. Berlin reflects a belief that honest materials, when precisely composed, can elevate utility into something sculptural, intentional, and enduring.

ATHENA MARBLE

Athena Full Marble is a washbasin made entirely from Carrara marble, featuring a sculptural design that highlights verticality and pure form. Its clean silhouette, marked by carefully spaced fluting, brings rhythm and depth without overwhelming the space. It stands out through clarity, not excess.

Each piece is crafted individually, preserving the unique character of the marble block it comes from. The details are precisely finished, and the proportions are designed to bring a sense of balance to any setting. Athena is not just about the material—it's about how form elevates it with intention and simplicity.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

Athena Marble celebrates motion held still — a spiral frozen in stone. Its fluted geometry draws the eye upward, while the circular silhouette grounds the composition. There's a quiet tension between energy and control, between movement and permanence. The result is architectural, almost meditative — a sculptural basin that speaks through rhythm, precision, and the timeless weight of natural material.

Crafted from Carrara marble, Athena Marble reveals the expressive potential of form alone. No seams, no contrast — just one material shaped with clarity and discipline. It doesn't interrupt space but completes it, offering a visual anchor that's calm, sculptural, and entirely self-contained.

PARIS MARBLE

Paris Marble is carved entirely from marble, yet it speaks in a soft, restrained tone. Its circular shape is uninterrupted, flowing from a smooth upper surface into a finely fluted base — both cut from the same material. The transition is subtle, yet intentional, revealing how texture alone can define form.

Each piece is shaped from a single block, highlighting the honesty and purity of the material. Paris Marble doesn't rely on contrast — it finds expression in consistency, calmness, and quiet precision.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

Paris Marble is about flow — from top to base, from surface to detail. Its carved fluting isn't ornamental, but structural, giving the piece a gentle rhythm that catches light without distraction. There's elegance in its restraint, and strength in its simplicity. It's a quiet form that doesn't seek attention, but earns it through balance and intention.

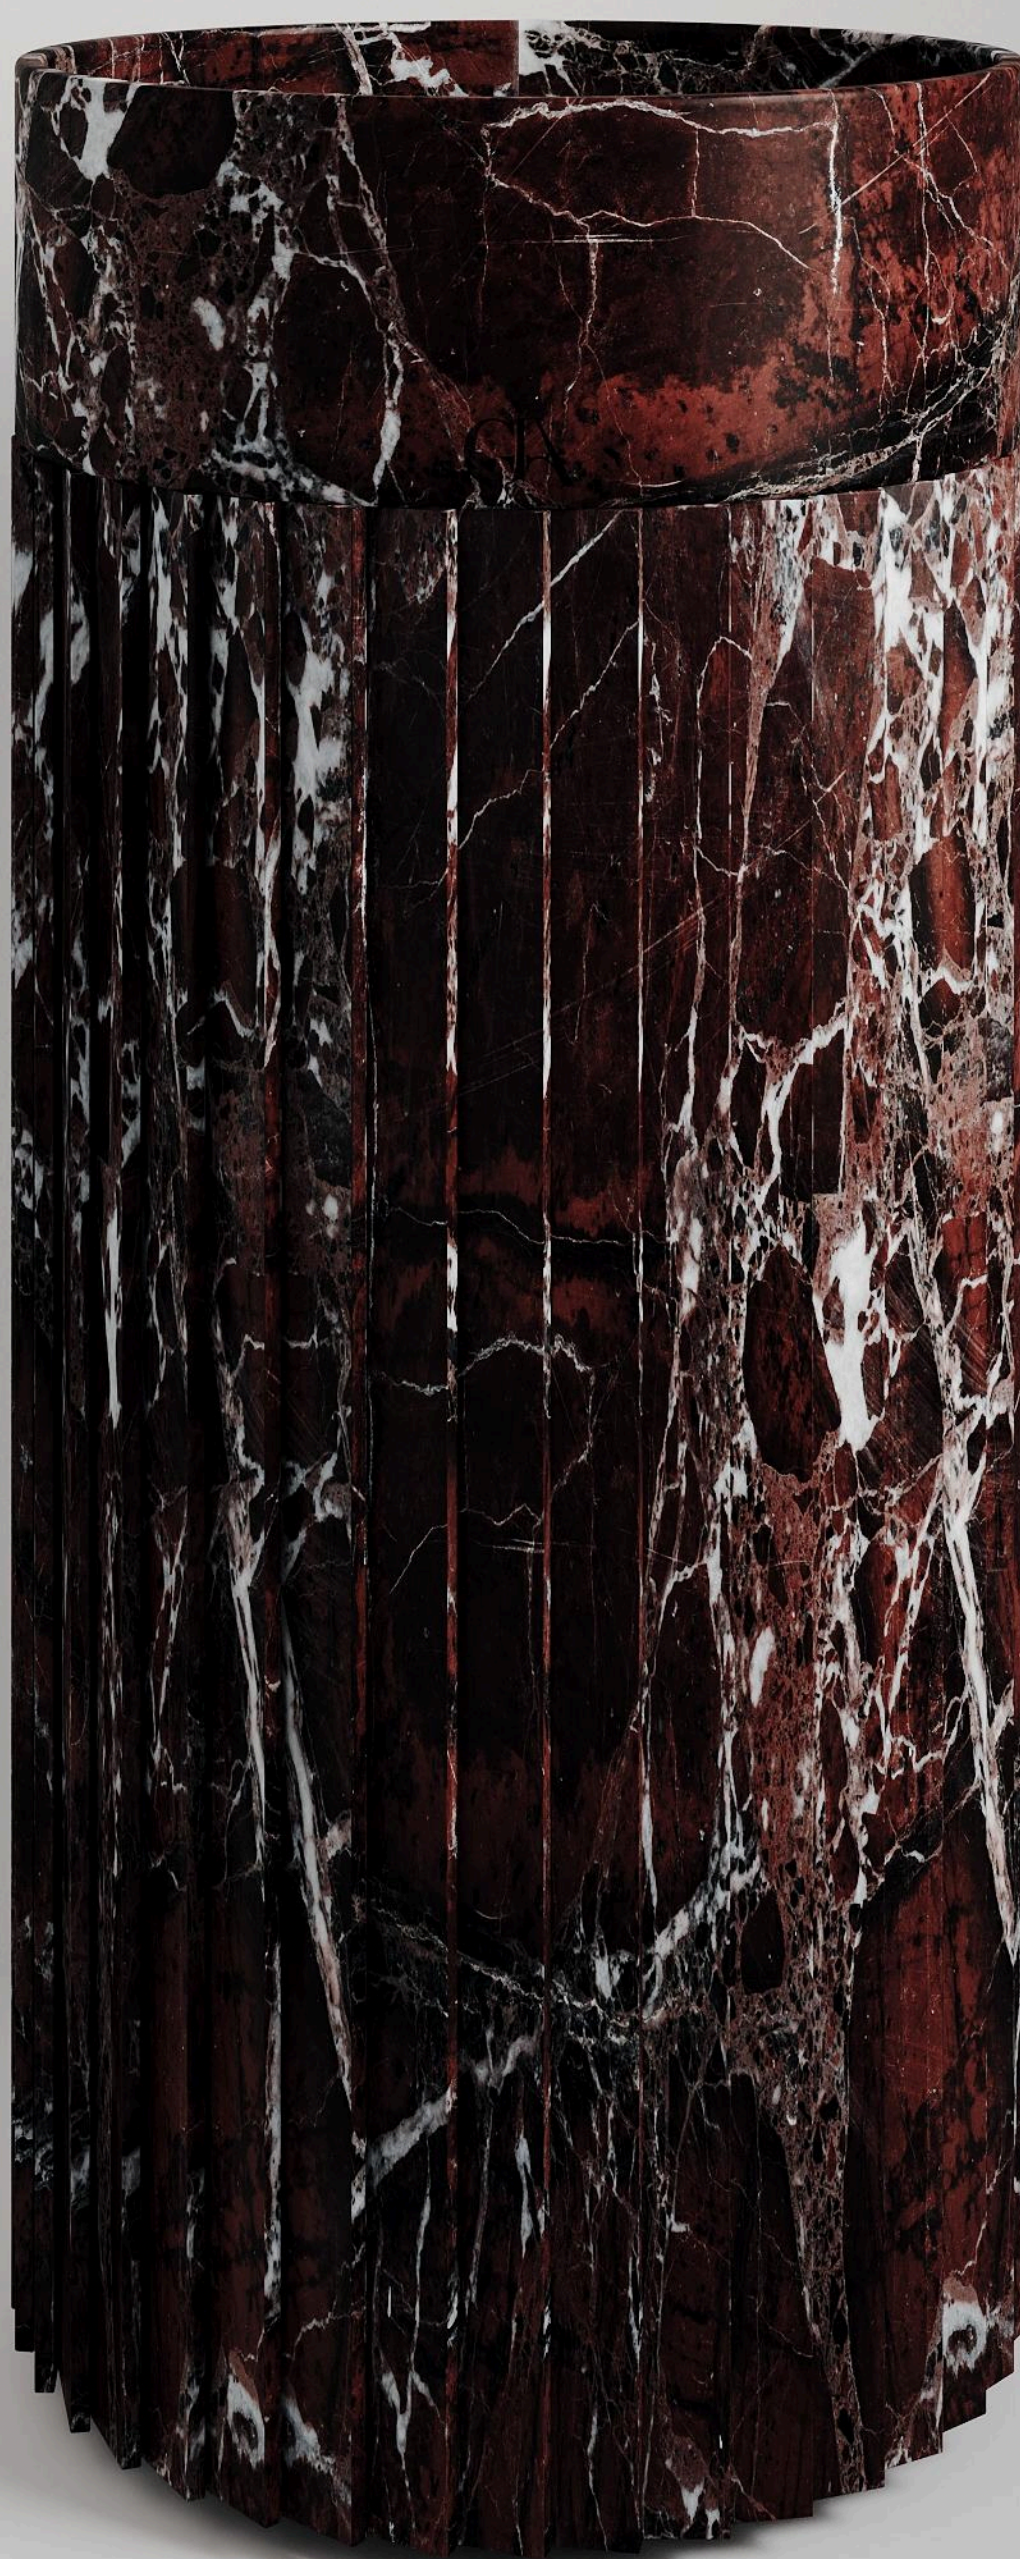

Cut from a single block, Paris Marble reflects the integrity of pure material. The transitions are subtle, but deliberate — guiding the eye without imposing. It's a piece that invites closeness and rewards observation, shaped to bring calm into the everyday through proportion, texture, and thoughtful execution.

LONDON MARBLE

London Marble is carved from a single block, forming a continuous silhouette that balances presence and restraint. The top is smooth and sculptural, while the base adds fluting for structure and rhythm. A design defined by proportion, material integrity, and quiet strength.

Rather than drawing attention through contrast, London Marble reveals its character through consistency. It doesn't ask for space — it shapes it, with quiet confidence and timeless precision.

The London Marble Wahsbasin

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

London Marble reflects a measured design approach — nothing added without reason, nothing removed without care. Its fluted base gives rhythm to the form, while the smooth top preserves clarity. This balance defines its presence: strong, but never loud. It's a piece that blends into sophisticated interiors without disappearing, always grounded in quiet strength.

There's no need for contrast when the material speaks so clearly. London Marble embraces restraint as a language. It doesn't decorate — it defines. Sculpted from a single block, it holds its space with precision, offering a pure, architectural expression of form, proportion, and permanence.

BERLIN MARBLE

Berlin Marble is shaped entirely from stone, balancing sculptural weight with refined detailing. The top is polished and quiet, while the base introduces vertical fluting that animates the surface without breaking the overall clarity. It's a piece built on contrast — not of materials, but of treatment and proportion.

Every washbasin is cut from a single marble block, chosen for its texture and tonal depth. The transition between smooth and striated volumes is seamless, creating a continuous body with architectural strength. Berlin Marble is not decorative — it's decisive, composed, and unapologetically solid.

THE DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

Berlin Marble reinterprets brutalist clarity through the lens of refinement. Its seamless volume is carved from solid stone, blending sculptural strength with precise symmetry. The surface transitions from smooth to fluted, introducing rhythm, light interplay, and subtle tactility—while maintaining a sense of calm. The form doesn't shout. It anchors.

Crafted from a single marble block, each basin celebrates consistency and material truth. Berlin Marble avoids excess, focusing instead on proportion and presence. It is a piece defined not by ornament, but by intention—architectural in stance, quiet in voice, and designed to endure beyond trend.
